

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

THE object of this work is to combine the merits of the most popular Dictionaries, especially those of Johnson and Walker, so as to supersede the necessity now felt of having more than one Dictionary even for the ordinary purposes of the English student; and at the same time, in avoiding their defects and redundancies, to preserve the same dimensions as the ordinary octavo abridgement of Johnson.

The course which has been adopted is, first, the exclusion of many words, now standing in Todd's edition of Johnson, which neither by use or analogy are English; and the introduction of which, either in writing or conversation, would draw upon the person using them the charge of pedantry or vulgarity. Secondly, in the common abridgements of Johnson, the authors' names are still retained; while the quotations, shewing the various acceptations in which the words were used by such authors, and which alone could make their names valuable, or even necessary, have been excluded. Many of these are names of no authority, beyond that of having appeared in print, while their perpetual recurrence has contributed to swell the volume to the exclusion of really valuable matter. These names have been dispensed with; and the space obtained by their omission, and by the omission of useless words and obsolete acceptations, has been devoted to the insertion of all such technical words as are now in use, and which the general reader is likely to meet with, and expected to understand: these have been given from the best authorities. Among such additions are many which have been compounded for or applied to recent inventions, now of general notoriety, and which therefore demand a place in an English vocabulary. To these may be added many words, which, but a few years since, might have been deemed obsolete or homely, but which having been of late most deservedly revived by writers of transcendent merit, now contribute both power and beauty to the most vigorous and polished compositions of the age. These, without descending to mere provincialisms, have been carefully inserted.

The pronunciation of Walker has been generally followed, though the Editor has not felt himself bound in all cases to adopt his mode of expressing that pronunciation. The principal deviation from Walker's system has been in the restoring of certain letters, for which others of a similar or nearly similar sound have been unnecessarily substituted. For instance, all words ending in er, as maker, cater, teller, better, &c. we are directed by Walker to pronounce ma'-kur, ka'-tur, tel'-hur, bet'-tur, &c. The sounds of the e and the u in that numerous class of words are certainly not easily distinguishable when spoken rapidly; but when pronounced deliberately, a delicate ear will instantly perceive the difference between the small sound of the one and the full sound of the other. Again, the letter d in certain situations, especially before the vowels i and u, when carelessly pronounced, is apt to slide into the sound of j. This, which in fact arises from a slovenly enunciation, is by Walker laid down as the strict rule: adulation is to be pronounced ad-ju-la'-shun, compendium is com-pen'-je-um, ingredient, in-gre'-jent, &c. This, in a passage read or spoken with solemnity, would be intolerable. In like manner the syllable tu, perpetually recurring in our language, as in the words congratulation, flatulent, natural, &c. will, even when most carefully spoken, receive a sufficient degree of the aspirate, without the speaker following Walker's direction to pronounce them con-gratsh-u-la'-shun, flatsh'-u-lense, nat'-tshu-ral, &c. It is not probable that a polite speaker would at this day, even on Mr. Walker's authority, pronounce the word yes, yis.

The simplicity and typographical beauty of the mode suggested by the publisher, and adopted for the first time in the present work, of marking the different sounds of the vowels by the points instead of the figures will be immediately perceived.

SOUNDS OF THE VOWELS.

A has three long sounds and two short ones.

The first sound of the first letter in our alphabet is that which among the English is its name. This is what is called, by most grammarians, its slender sound; we find it in the words lade, spade, trade, &c. In the diphthong ai we have exactly the same sound of this letter, as in pain, gain, stain, &c. and sometimes in the diphthong ea, as bear, swear, pear, &c.; and twice we find it in the words where and there, and once in the anomalous diphthong ae in gaol.

The long slender a is generally produced by a silent e at the end of a syllable; which e not only keeps one single intervening consonant from shortening the preceding vowel, but sometimes two: thus we find the mute e makes of rag, rage, and keeps the a open in range, change, &c.; hat, with the mute e, becomes hate, and the a continues open, and perhaps somewhat longer in haste, waste, paste, &c. though it must be confessed this seems the privilege only of a; for the other vowels contract before the consonants ng in revenge, cringe, plunge; and the st in our language is preceded by no other vowel but this. Every consonant but n shortens every vowel but a, when soft g and e silent succeed; as, bilge, badge, hinge, spunge, &c.

Hence we may establish this general rule: A has the long, open, slender sound, when followed by a single consonant, and e mute, as lade, made, fade, &c. The only exceptions seem to be, have, are, gape, and bade, the past time of to bid.

A has generally the same sound when ending an accented syllable, as, pa-per, ta-per, spec-ta-tor.

We proceed to the second sound of this vowel, which is that heard in father, and is called by some the open sound; but this can never distinguish it from the deeper sound of the a in all, ball, &c. which is still more open: by some it is styled the middle sound of a, as between the a in pale, and that in wall: it answers nearly to the Italian a in Toscano, Romano, &c. or to the final a in the naturalized Greek words, papa and mamma.

The long sound of the middle or Italian a is always found before the liquids lm; whether the latter only be pronounced, as in psalm, or both, as in psalmist: sometimes before lf, and lve, as calf, half, calve, halve, salve, &c.; and before the sharp aspirated dental th in bath, path, lath, father, glass, grass, last, fast, after, basket, must, master, command, demand, &c.

As the mute l in calm, psalm, calf, half, &c. seems to lengthen the sound of this letter, so the abbreviation of some words by apostrophe seems to have the same effect. Thus, when the no is cut out of the word cannot, and the two syllables reduced to one, we find the a lengthened to the Italian or middle a, as cannot, can't; have not, han't; shall not, shan't, &c.

The short sound of the middle or Italian a, which is generally confounded with the short sound of the slender a, is the sound of this vowel in pan, tun, mat, hat, &c. We generally find this sound before any two successive consonants.

The third long sound of a is that which we more immediately derive from our maternal language, the Saxon, but which at present we use less than any other: this is the a in fall, ball, gall: we find a correspondent sound to this a in the diphthongs, au and aw, as laud, law, saw, &c.

The long sound of the deep broad German a is produced by ll after it, as in all, wall, call; or, indeed, by one l, and any other consonant, except the mute labials, p, b, f, and v, as salt, bald, false, falcon, falcon, &c. The exceptions to this rule are generally words from the Arabic and Latin languages, as Alps, Albion, asphaltic, falcated, salvo, calculate, amalgamate, Alcoran, and Alfred, &c. Our modern orthography, has made it necessary to observe, that every word compounded of a monosyllable with ll, as albeit, also, almost, &c. must be pronounced as if the two liquids were still remaining.

The w has a peculiar quality of broadening this letter, even when prepositive: this is always the effect, except when the vowel is closed by the sharp or flat guttural k or g, x, ng, nk, or the sharp labial f, as wax, waft, thwack, twang, twank: thus we pronounce the a broad, though short in wad, wan, want, was, what, &c. and though other letters suffer the a to alter its sound before ll, when one of these letters goes to the formation of the latter syllable, as tall, tal-low; hall, hal-low; call, cal-low, &c. yet we see w preserve the sound of this vowel before a single consonant, as wal-low, swal-low, &c.

The g including the sound of the w, and being no more than this letter preceded by k, ought, according to analogy, to broaden every a it goes before, like the w; thus quantity ought to be pronounced as if written kwontity, and quality should rhyme with jollity. There are however some exceptions, as quaver and equator.

The short sound of this broad a is heard when it is preceded by w, and succeeded by a single consonant in the same syllable, as wal-low swal-low, &c. or by two consonants in the same syllable, as want, wast, wasp, &c. but when l or r is one of the consonants, the a becomes long, as walk, swarm, &c.

The a in the numerous termination ate, when the accent is on it, is pronounced somewhat differently in different words. If the word be a substantive, or an adjective, the a seems to be shorter than when it is a verb: thus a good ear will discover a difference in the quantity of this letter, in delicate and dedicate; in climate, primate, and ultimate; and the verbs to calculate, to regulate, and to speculate, where we find the nouns and adjectives have the a considerably shorter than the verbs. Innate, however, preserves the a as long as if the accent were on it: but the unaccented terminations in ace, whether nouns or verbs, have the a so short and obscure as to be nearly similar to the e in less; thus, palace, solace, menace, pinnacle, populace, might, without any great departure from their common sound, be written palles, solles, &c. But the sound of the a which is the most difficult to appreciate, is that where it ends the syllable, either immediately before or after the accent. We cannot give it any of its three open sounds without hurting the ear; thus, in pronouncing the words abound and diadem, ay-bound, abbound, and aw-bound; di-ay-dem, di-ah-dem, and di-aw-dem, are all improper; but giving the a the second, or Italian sound, as ah-bound and di-ah-dem, seems the least so. For which reason the short sound of this letter has been adopted to mark this unaccented a: but if the unaccented a be final, which is not the case in any word purely English, it then seems to approach still nearer to the Italian a in the last syllable of papa, and to the a in father, as may be heard in the deliberate pronunciation of the words idea, Africa, Delta, &c.

The first sound of e is that which it has when lengthened by the mute e final, as in glebe, theme, &c. or when it ends a syllable with the accent upon it, as se-cre-tion, ad-he-sion, &c.

The exceptions to this rule are, th words where and there, in which the first e is pronounced like a, as if written whare, thare; and the auxiliary verb were, where the e has its short sound, as if written werr, rhyming with the last syllable of pre-fer; and ere (before), which sounds like air.

The short sound of e is that heard in bed, fed, red, wed, &c.

The e at the end of the monosyllables be, he, me, we, is pronounced ee, as if written bee, hee, &c. It is silent at the end of words purely English, but is pronounced distinctly at the end of some words from the learned languages, as epitome, simile, catastrophe, apostrophe, &c.

The first e in the poetic contractions, e'er and ne'er, is pronounced like a, as if written air and nair.

This vowel, in a final unaccented syllable, is apt to slide into the short i: thus, faces, ranges, praises, are pronounced as if written faciz, rangiz, praiziz.

There is a remarkable exception to the common sound of this letter in the words clerk, serjeant, and a few others, where we find the e pronounced like the a in dark and margin. But this exception, I imagine, was, till within these few years, the general rule of sounding this letter before r, followed by another consonant.

The vowel e before l and n in the final unaccented syllable, by its being sometimes suppressed and sometimes not, forms one of the most puzzling difficulties in pronunciation. When any of the liquids precede these letters, the e is heard distinctly, as woollen, flannel, women, syren; but when any of the other consonants come before these letters, the e is sometimes heard, as in novel, sudden; and sometimes not, as in swivel, raven, &c. No exact rule can be given for this variety of pronunciation; but, it may be observed, the e before l, in a final unaccented syllable, must always be pronounced distinctly, except in the following words: shekel, weasel, ousel, navel, ravel, snivel, ravel, drivel, shrivel, shovel, grovel, hazel, nozel.

The words are pronounced as if the e were omitted by an apostrophe, as shek'l, weas'l, ous'l, &c. or rather as if written shekle, weasle, ousle, &c.; but as these are the only words of this termination that are so pronounced, great care must be taken that we do pronounce travel, gravel, rebel (the substantive) parcel, chapel, and vessel, in the same manner; a fault to which many are very prone.

E before n in a final unaccented syllable, and not preceded by a liquid, must always be suppressed in the verbal terminations in en, as to loosen, to hearken, and in other words, except the following: sudden, kitchen, hyphen, chicken, ticken (better written ticking), jerken, aspen, platen, marten, latten, paten, leaven or leven, sloven, mitten, and perhaps a few others. In these words the e is heard distinctly, contrary to the general rule which suppresses the e in these syllables, when preceded by a mute, as harden, heathen, heaven, as if written hard'n, heath'n, heav'n, &c.; nay, even when preceded by a liquid, in the words fallen and stolen, where the e is suppressed, as if they were written fall'n and stol'n: garden and burden, therefore, are very analogically pronounced gard'n and burd'n: and this pronunciation ought the rather to be indulged, as we always hear the e suppressed in gardener and burdensome, as if written gard'ner and burd'n-some.

This diversity in the pronunciation of these terminations ought the more carefully to be attended to, as nothing is so vulgar and childish as to hear swivel and heaven pronounced with the e distinctly, or novel and chicken with the e suppressed. But the most general suppression of this letter is in the preterits of verbs, and in participles ending in ed: here when the e is not preceded by d or t, the e is almost universally sunk, and the two final consonants are pronounced in one syllable: thus, loved, lived, barred, marred, are pronounced as if written lord, livd, bard, mard. The same may be observed of this letter when silent in the singulars of nouns, or the first persons of verbs, as theme, make, &c. which form themes in the plural, and makes in the third person, &c. where the last e is silent, and the words are pronounced in one syllable. When the noun or first person of the verb ends in y, with the accent on it, the e is likewise suppressed, as a reply, two replies, he replies, &c. But it must be carefully noted, that there is a remarkable exception to many of these contractions when we are pronouncing the language of scripture: here every participial ed ought to make a distinct syllable, where it is not preceded by a vowel: thus, "Who hath believed our report, and to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed?" Here the participles are both pronounced in three syllables; but in the following passage, "Whom he did predestinate, them he also called: and whom he called, them he also justified; and whom he justified, them he also glorified." Called preserves the e, and is pronounced in two syllables; and justified and glorified suppress the e, and are pronounced in three.

I.

This letter is a perfect diphthong, composed of the sounds of a in father, and e in he, pronounced as closely together as possible. The sound of this letter is heard when it is lengthened by final e, as time, thine, or ending a syllable with the accent upon it, as ti-tle, di-al; in monosyllables ending with nd, as bind, find, mind, &c. in three words ending with ld, as child, mild, wild; and in one very irregularly ending with nt, as pint.

The short sound of this letter is heard in him, thin, &c. and when ending an unaccented syllable, as van-i-ty, qual-i-ty, &c. where, though it cannot be properly said to be short, as it is not closed by a consonant, yet it has but half its diphthongal sound. This sound is the sound of e, the last letter of the diphthong that forms the long i.

When this letter is succeeded by r, and another consonant not in a final syllable, it has exactly the sound of e in vermin, vernal, &c. as virtue, virgin, bird, dirt, shirt, squirt, mirth, birth, gird, girt, skirt, girl, whirl, firm, &c.

The letter r, in this case, seems to have the same influence on this vowel, as it evidently has on a and o. When these vowels come before double r, or single r, followed by a vowel, as in arable, carry, marry, orator, horrid, forage, &c. they are considerably shorter than when the r is the final letter of the word, or when it is succeeded by another consonant, as in urbour, car, mar, or, nor, for. In the same manner, the i, coming before either double r, or single r, followed by a vowel, preserves its pure short sound, as in irritate, spirit, conspiracy, &c.; but when r is followed by another consonant, or is the final letter of a word with the accent upon it, the i goes into a deeper and broader sound, equivalent to short e, as heard in virgin, virtue, &c. So fir, a tree, is perfectly similar to the first syllable of ferment.

There is an irregular pronunciation of this letter, which has greatly multiplied within these few years, and that is, the slender sound heard in ee. This sound is chiefly found in words derived from the French and Italian languages.

The words that have preserved the foreign sound of i like ee, are principally the following: antique, bombasin, brasil, capivi, capuchin, caprice, chagrin, chevaux-de-frise, critique, frize, gabardine, haberdine, quarantine, routine, fascine, fatigue, intrigue, invalid, machine, magazine, marine, palanquin, pique, police, profile, recitative, mandarine, tabourine, tambourine, tontine, transmarine, ultramarine. In all these words, if for the last i we substitute ee, we shall have the true pronunciation. In signior the first i is thus pronounced.

When i ends an initial syllable without the accent, and the succeeding syllable begins with a consonant, the is generally slender, as if written e. But the exceptions to this rule are so numerous, that nothing but a catalogue would give a tolerable idea of the state of pronunciation in this point.

Chicane and chicanery have the i always short, or more properly slender.

Ci before the accent has the i generally short, as, ci-vilian, ci-vility. Ci-barious and ci-tation have the i long.

Cti before the accent has the i long, as, cli-macter.

Cri before the accent has the i generally long, as, cri-nigerous, cri-terion.

Di before the accented syllable, beginning with a consonant, ought generally to be pronounced long, as, digest, digestion, digress, digression, dilute, dilution, diluvian, dimension, dimensive, direct, direction, diversify, diversification, diversion, diversity, divert, divertisement, divertive, divest, divesture, divulge, didactic, dilacerate, dilaceration, dilaniate, dilapidation, dilate, dilatable, dilatability, dilection, dinumeration, diverge, divergent; though some of them may undoubtedly be pronounced either way; and in some the i is short, as, divide, diminish, divine, dizeresis, dioptrics, &c.

O.

Grammarians have generally allowed this letter but three sounds. Mr. Sheridan instances them in not, note, prove. For a fourth I have added the o in love, dove, &c.; for the fifth, that in or, nor, for; and a sixth, that in woman, wolf, &c.

The first and only peculiar sound of this letter is that by which it is named in the alphabet: it requires the mouth to be formed, in some degree, like the letter, in order to pronounce it. This may be called its long open sound, as the o in prove may be called its long slender sound. This sound we find in words ending with silent e, as, tone, bone, alone; or when ending a syllable with the accent upon it, as, mo-tion, po-tent, &c.;

likewise in the monosyllables, go, so, no. This sound is found under several combinations of other vowels with this letter, as in moan, groan, bow (to shoot with), low (not high), and before st in the words host, ghost, post, most, and before ss in gross.

The third sound of this letter is called its short sound, and is found in not, got, lot, &c.; though this, as in the other short vowels, is by no means the short sound of the former long one, but corresponds exactly to that of a, in what, with which the words not, got, lot, are perfect rhymes.

The second sound of this letter, as was marked in the observation, may be called its long slender sound, corresponding to the double o. The words where this sound of o occurs are so few, that it will be easy to give a catalogue of them: prove, move, behave, and their compounds, lose, do, ado, poltron, ponton, sponton, who, whom, womb, tomb.

It may be observed, that the o, like the e, is suppressed in a final unaccented syllable when preceded by c or k, and followed by n, as bacon, beacon, deacon, beckon, reckon, pronounced bak'n, beak'n, deak'n, beck'n, reck'n. The o is likewise mute in the same situation, when preceded by d in pardon, pronounced pard'n, but not in guerdon: it is mute when preceded by p in weapon, capon, &c. pronounced weap'n, cap'n, &c.; and when preceded by s in reason, season, treason, oraison, berison, denison, unison, foison, poison, prison, damson, crimson, advowson, pronounced reaz'n, treaz'n, &c. and mason, bason, garrison, lesson, caprison, comparison, disinherison, parson, and person, pronounced mas'n, bas'n, &c. Unison, diapason, and cargason, seem, particularly in solemn speaking, to preserve the sound of o like u, as if written unizun, diapazun, &c. The same letter is suppressed in a final unaccented syllable beginning with t, as seton, cotton, button, mutton, glutton, pronounced as if written set'n, cot'n, &c. When x precedes the t, the o is pronounced distinctly, as in sexton.

This letter is likewise suppressed in the last syllable of blazon, pronounced blaz'n; but is always to be preserved in the same syllable of horizon. This suppression of the o must not be ranked among those careless abbreviations found only among the vulgar, but must be considered as one of those devious tendencies to brevity, which has worn itself a currency in the language, and has at last become a part of it. To pronounce the o in those cases where it is suppressed, would give a singularity to the speaker.

U.

The first sound of u, heard in tube, or ending an accented syllable, as in cu-bic, is a diphthongal sound, as if e were prefixed, and these words were spelt teube, keubic. The letter u is exactly the pronoun you.

The second sound of u is the short sound, which tallies exactly with the o in done, son, &c. which every ear perceives might as well, for the sound's sake, be spelt dun, sun, &c.

The third sound of this letter is the u in bull, full, pull, &c. The first or diphthongal u in tube seems almost as peculiar to the English as the long sound of the i in thine, mine, &c.; but here, as if they chose to imitate the Latin, Italian, and French u, they leave out the e before the u, which is heard in tube, mule, &c. and do not pronounce the latter part of u quite so long as the oo in pool, nor so short as the u in dull, but with a middle sound between both, which is the true short sound oo in coo and woo, as may be heard by comparing woo and wool; the latter of which is a perfect rhyme to bull.

This middle sound of u, so unlike the general sound of that letter, exists only in the following words: bull, full, pull; words compounded of full, as wonderful, dreadful, &c. bullock, bully, bullet, bulwark, fuller, fulling-mill, pulley, pullet, push, bush, bushel, pulpit, puss, bullion, butcher, cushion, cuckoo, pudding, sugar, hussar, huzza, and put, when a verb: we find this sound chiefly confined to words which begin with the mute labials, b, p, f, and end with the liquid labial l, or the dentals s, t, and d, as in bull, full, pull, bush, push, pudding, puss, put, &c. The compounds of bull, and those of full, which are numerous, follow the sound of their primitives.

It must be remarked, that this sound of u, except in the word fuller, never extends to words from the learned languages; for, fulminant, fulmination, ebullition, repulsion, sepulchre, &c. sound the u as in dull, gull, &c. and the u in pus and pustule is exactly like the same letter in thus. So the pure English words, fulsome, buss, bulge, bustle, bustard, buzzard, preserve the u in its second sound, as us, hull, and custard.

A deviation from the legitimate sounds of this letter is found in the words busy, business and bury, which are pronounced bizzy, bizness, and berry.

Y final.

Y final, either in a word or syllable, is a pure vowel, and has exactly the same sound as i would have in the same situation. For this reason, printers, who have been the great correctors of our orthography, have substituted the i in its stead, on account of the too great frequency of this letter in the English language. That y final is a vowel, is universally acknowledged; nor need we any other proof of it than its long sound, when followed by e mute, as in thyme, rhyme, &c. or ending a syllable with the accent upon it, as buying, cyder, &c.; this may be called its first vowel sound.

The second sound of the vowel y is its short sound, heard in system, syn-tar, &c.

The unaccented sound of this letter at the end of a syllable, like that of the i in the same situation, is always like the first sound of e: thus vanity, pleurisy, &c., if sound alone were con-alted, might be written vanitee, plennee, &c.

The exception to this rule is, when f precedes the y in a final syllable, the y is then pronounced as long and open as if the accent were on it: thus justify, qualify, &c. have the last syllable sounded like that in defy. This long sound continues when the y is changed into i, in justifiable, qualifiable, &c. The same may be observed of multiply and multipliable, &c. occupy and occupiable, &c.

W final.

That w final is a vowel, is not disputed; when it is in this situation, it is equivalent to oo; as may be perceived in the sound of vow, low-el, &c.; where it forms a real diphthong, composed of the a in wa-ter, and the oo in woo and coo. It is often joined to o at the end of a syllable, without affecting the sound of that vowel; and in this situation it may be called servile, as in bow (to shoot with), crow, low, not high, &c.

ENGLISH LANGUAGE.

A, Has, in the English language, regularly only two sounds peculiar to itself; a short and a long one; all other sounds being irregular; and depending upon its combination with other letters. The broad sound resembling that of the German a is found in many of our monosyllables, as all, wall, malt, salt; in which a is pronounced as au in cause, or au in law. A open, not unlike the a of the Italians, is found, in father, rather. A slender, or close, is the peculiar a of the English language, resembling the sound of the French e masculine, as in the words place, face, waste, and all those that terminate in ation; as, relation, nation, generation. A is also, in some words transient and unobserved, as in the last syllables of carriage and marriage; in others less faintly sounded, as in those of captain and chaplain; and in some obscurely uttered, as in collar, jocular.

A, an article set before nouns of the singular number; a man, a tree. Before words beginning with a vowel and h mute, it is written an; as an ox, an egg, an honour, an habitual practice. A is sometimes a noun; as, a great A. A is placed before a participle, or participial noun; and is considered as a contraction of at; as I am a walking. It also seems to be anciently contracted from at, when placed before local surnames; as Thomas a Becket. In other cases, it seems to signify to; and in some cases it signifies in. A, prefixed to many or few, implies one whole number; as, Told of a many thousand warlike French. A has a peculiar signification, denoting the proportion of one thing to another; as, The landlord hath a hundred a year. A, in composition, seems to have sometimes the power of the French à in these phrases, à droit, à gauche, &c. and sometimes to be contracted from at, as, aside, aslope, asfoot, asleep, athirst, aware. Yet some of these are not so contracted. They are the same as on side, on foot, on sleep. So adays was formerly written on days; aboard, on board. There are words of which the a is become so component a part as not to be displaced; as, afresh, alive, aloud, anew; but it is redundant in arise, arouse, awake. A, in abbreviations, stands for artium, or arts; as A.B. batchelor of arts, artium baccalaureus;

A.M. master of arts, artium magister; or anno; as, A. D. anno domini.

I.

I, is in English considered both as a vowel and consonant.

I vowel has a long sound, as fine, thine, which is usually marked by an e final; and a short sound, as fin, thin. Prefixed to e it makes a diphthong of the same sound with the soft i, or double e, ee: thus field, yield, are spoken as feeld, yeeld; except friend, which is spoken frend. Subjoined to a or e it makes them long, as fail, neigh; and to o makes a mingled sound, which approaches to the notion of a diphthong, as oil, coin. The sound of i before another i, and at the end of a word, is always expressed by y.

J consonant has invariably the same sound with that of g in giant; as, jade, jet, jilt, jolt, just.

I, pronoun personal: oblique case me; plural we, oblique case us.

S

S HAS in English the same hissing sound as in other languages, and unhappily prevails in so many of our words that it produces in the ear of a foreigner a continued sibilant. In the beginning of words it has invariably its natural and genuine sound: in the middle it is sometimes uttered with a stronger appulse of the tongue to the palate, like s; as, rose, roseate, rasy, osier, no-sel, resident, busy, business. It sometimes keeps its natural sound, as loose, designation. In the end of monosyllables it is sometimes s, as in this; and sometimes z, as in as, has; and generally where es stands in verbs for eth, as gives.

SEM

- upon themselves, as I did not hurt him, he hurt himself; the people hiss me, but I clap myself. It is sometimes used emphatically in the nominative case, as myself will decide it. Compounded with him, a pronoun substantive, self is in appearance an adjective: joined to my, thy, our, your, pronoun adjectives, it seems a substantive. Myself, himself, themselves, and the rest, may, contrary to the analogy of my, him, them, be used as nominatives. It often adds only emphasis and force to the pronoun with which it is compounded, as he did it himself. It signifies the individual, as subject to his own contemplation or action. It is much used in composition, as self-love, self-evident, &c.
